

1- Overview

Some cookies are operating in the background when you visit and surf our website www.TEFLWonderland.com.

Cookies are used to store some information that will help in the website functionality, operation, performance, user experience and preferences, analysis, and marketing.

Cookies are not programs, cannot collect information from your computer, and they do not damage your computer. They can be used for authentication, storing site preferences, shopping cart contents, etc.

2- Definition

Cookies are small text files placed on your device by us or our partners. Some of its data are destroyed once you leave the site. They enable us to identify the device you are using, your internet browser, your IP (Internet Protocol), your location, etc.

Cookies are unique to the web browser you are using – so if you are using a desktop computer, iPad, mobile, etc., different data will be collected for each. Cookies are usually anonymous and do not store personally identifiable information (IIP), so they will not identify you personally.

1st party cookies are those created by the owner of the website you are surfing. However, there are 3rd party cookies that can be set by partner websites. The owner of the cookies can see the anonymous information it collects.

3- Classification

Cookies are classified into many types, which are mainly related to:

- A) Ads & Targeting – these cookies are used to deliver advertises relevant to you and limit the ads you are not interested in.
- B) Website Operations, Functions and Visitor Preferences – to facilitate your website navigation, registration, log in, purchase, etc. When a visitor is browsing or purchasing a product or service, these cookies will remember your preferences (e.g., your currency, pre-filled online forms, etc.) so that your shopping experience will be as seamless and personalized as possible. Please note that we never store information on credit or debit cards.
- C) Statistics & Analytics – to analyze the visitors' usage of the site and to improve its functionality and performance, understand how our customers find the products they buy, and track any technical issues to fix them.

4- Rejecting or Deleting Cookies

If you want to reject/delete any of these cookies or all of them, you can do that easily and at any time by accessing the settings section in your web browser. However, please be aware that by deleting or disabling cookies, some features and functions may not work properly.

5- Accepting Cookies

By using our website www.TEFLWonderland.com, you acknowledge and agree that we are using these cookies which are stored in your device and accessible to the website functionality.

Please read our Privacy Policy for additional information.

6- Review of Policy

We reserve the right to change our policies from time to time when deemed necessary or when required by law. Any changes will be posted on our website, and enrolled users will be notified by email. You will be deemed to have read and accepted our policies, terms and conditions when you are using our website(s), our premises, our venues, or contracted with us.

This policy is reviewed annually. The next review date will be April 2023